Management and Leadership for Women in Petroleum Industry
November 10 - 19, 2020

Hello everyone. I am Bakheeta Almansouri, Manager, Talent acquisition from ADNOC.

Today marks the end of a chapter and the start of a new one, to be filled, hopefully with even more stories of success. Our precious time together flew by fast, but what we have learned from this one-of-a-kind experience will be remembered.
Despite the unprecedented times imposed by the pandemic, participants of diverse cultures and backgrounds were brought together to share their thoughts and knowledge. This (COVID-19 pandemic) is bringing us even closer together than the times pre-corona.

On behalf of ADNOC and the participants, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the sponsors, the participating organizations, the panelists, and last but not least, the JCCP management and organizers who extended their enduring support, guidance, and help throughout the program.

“Promoting New Work Styles and Diversity in the New Era” was not only discussed as a subject but was truly shown throughout the successful and engaging workshop. Together we were able to approach global issues faced at work, analyze its various aspects including working from home and the well-being of the workforce, and try to come up with robust solutions.

The knowledge we gained from the participating forum panelists was truly enlightening. Significant topics were covered such as methods to support the career of women while sustaining the work-life balance to the approaches leveraged by the technologies during the pandemic, where businesses continued performing and some even exceeded targets.

We have a saying at ADNOC, “I am the difference”. We believe that the efforts and the behaviors of individuals are great contributors for the upshift and success of the organization through compliance and innovation. Therefore, I’d like to pass on this saying to you, “We are the difference” and we’ll return to our organizations with the positive outcomes gained out of this workshop to make a positive impact.

I was really privileged and honored to participate in this workshop. The time passed by very quickly, and I only wish it could have lasted longer. I wish you great success and prosperity. Stay Safe, Stay Positive, and Stay Focused.

Thank you
